

NORTH PRIMARY SCHOOL NEWSLETTER

28/11/25

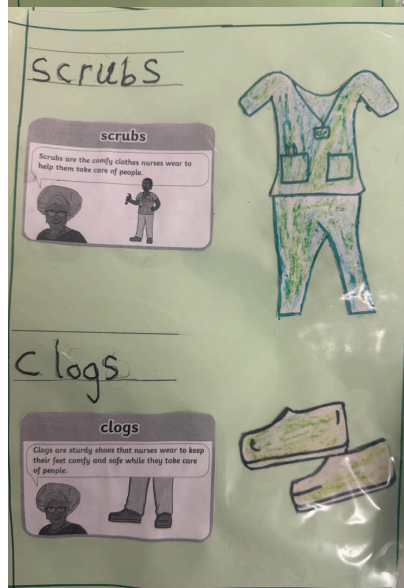

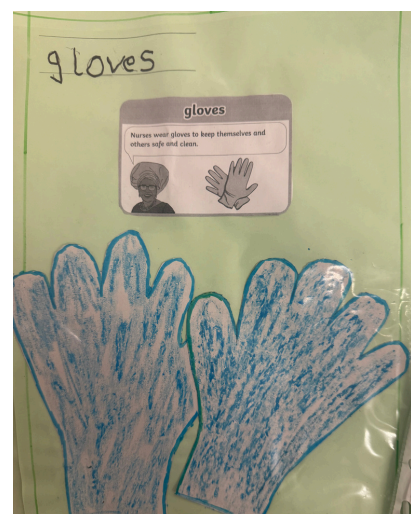

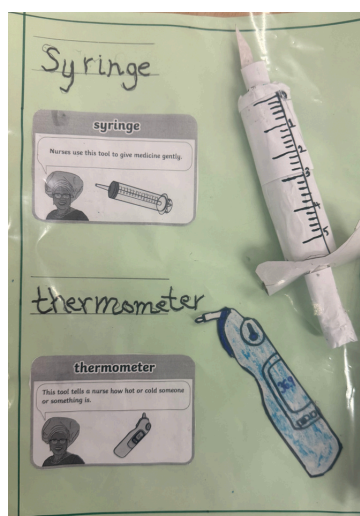

Time is flying by and I cannot believe we are heading towards the end of autumn term already! It has been wonderful to see both children and staff working so hard over the past few weeks and already making impressive progress together.

Headteacher
Miss Reed

Even as the colder weather settles in, the children continue with their enjoyment of playtimes, wrapped up warm but still full of energy and curiosity. Our playtime provision was acknowledged just yesterday, when we received the "Gold" level of accreditation from O.P.A.L. The children were keen to tell the inspector how they love the types of play on offer and how much playtimes have improved over the last two years. "The high quality play offer now available to the children at North Primary School is an absolute credit to the entire team and the hard work that you've put into transforming your playtimes."

With the festive season approaching, excitement is building for our upcoming Christmas events, which are listed in the dates below. We encourage you to book tickets for the Christmas performances - these are both a safeguarding and health and safety measure. I would also like to invite all parents to join me for a coffee morning on 5th December, where we will revisit actions from our last meeting, share our ongoing plans for the school, and, most importantly, hear your thoughts and feedback. Thank you, as always, for your continued support.

Each of the school holidays, Miss Smith sets a task on North Family Science (via google classroom) to encourage pupils to be curious and explore the world around us. Over the October half term, pupils were encouraged to learn more about the contribution of Black people to the medical profession.

Mohammed Muzakkir Ali Qureshi in Sun class produced this fantastic report about Dame Elizabeth Anionwu. He was able to tell his classmates all about the equipment Dame Elizabeth used to help people and why she is an excellent role model.

Keep an eye out for further challenges on North family Science each holiday!

Create a Christmas Decoration

The decorations for our Christmas Trees have gone missing! We need your help - please make a Christmas decoration to hang on our tree. You can use anything you can find at home, recycling and reusing materials is a great way to reduce waste and help the planet.
